

Lori J. Johnson

Managing Attorney of the Farmworker
Unit of Legal Aid of North Carolina

Lori J. Johnson is the managing attorney of the Farmworker Unit of Legal Aid of North Carolina. She began practicing agricultural employment law with the Farmworker Legal Services of North Carolina in 1997.

She obtained civil remedies for migrant and seasonal farmworkers, injured workers, and victims of human trafficking through civil litigation and appeared before adjudicative agencies. In addition, she has secured immigration relief for victims of crime and forced labor trafficking.

She received her B.A. from the University of Wisconsin- Madison in 1994 and a J.D. from Northeastern School of Law in 1997.